LEAD AND ZINC IN KENTUCKY IN 1912

Notable Increase Shown in Output of Both Metals.

According to J. P. Dunlop, of the United States Geological Survey, 151 tons of galena concentrates having an average lead content of 70.2 per cent were shipped to smelters from the fluorspar mines in Kentucky in 1912. No shipments were reported in 1911. The quantity of zinc concentrates shipped increased from 467 tons in 1911 to 1,243 tons in 1912, and the total value of zinc concentrates increased, from $10,604 to $41,391. The recoverable metallic content of the lead concentrates was valued at $9,540. In some years smelters have recovered as high as 3 ounces of silver to the ton of galena concentrates, but no recovery of silver was reported from the concentrates smelted in 1912. The zinc concentrates sold comprised 493 tons of sphalerite of good grade and 750 tons of zinc carbonate averaging 35.6 per cent metal content. The estimated recoverable spelter content was 491 tons, valued at $67,758, a large increase over the 1911 output, which was 158 tons, worth $18,012. The principal lead producers were the Kentucky Fluorspar Co., the Roberts Fluorspar & Lead Co., and the LaRue Co.

The Eclipse Mining Co., operated the Commodore mine in the Marion district, and succeeded in successfully milling ore derived from the 185-foot level. The mill is of small capacity and the ore difficult to treat. The average recovery of concentrates from ore was approximately 10 per cent and the average zinc content of the concentrates was increased from 54.4 per cent in early operations to over 59 per cent. All the sphalerite concentrates shipped from Kentucky in 1912 were derived from the Commodore mine.

The largest shippers of zinc carbonate concentrates were the Langenbach Mining Co., operating the Mann mine, near Lola, and the Sanders Ore Separating Co., operating on land of the Marion Mineral Co.

Mrs. Creed A. Taylor delightfully entertained at dinner Wednesday evening. The color scheme, pink and white, was beautifully carried out in the decorations. The place cards were white hearts to which a small key was attached by a pink ribbon aroused the curiosity of the guests when they noticed the words on the card, "The key to the situation." But not a word was said about the cards until after dinner was served which consisted of five courses, grape fruit cocktail, jellied chicken, baked pineapple, banana fritters, creamed mushrooms on toast, timbales with peas, beaten biscuit, olives, fruit salad, wafers, charlotte russe, and coffee.

After the dinner the hostess took the lock that was suspended from the chandelier and passed it to her guests for each to apply their keys but the lock remained unopened until it reached the guest of honor, Miss Hoyt, she applied her key and immediately the lock sprang open. In the lock was found the "situation," which was as follows: "Hoyt and Gilliland in the month of May."

Those present were Mesdames Geo. Lawson, W. O. Tucker, Frank Jones, Creed A. Taylor, Misses Mabel Yandell, Ethel Boaz, Ruth Flanary and May Hoyt, of Sturgis.

DEATH OF MRS.

JUDSON BENNETT

Prominent Marion Lady Passes Away Tuesday Afternoon.

Mrs. Judson Bennett was stricken with paralysis at her home on East Belleville street at 11 o'clock Tuesday. She had been unusually well for several weeks and was getting dinner when she was attacked, and her husband and daughter, Mrs. Forest Harris, of Tolu, who was visiting at the house at the time and Miss Edna Clark, who lives with them, helped her to her bed. She never spoke and although every thing possible was done for her, and physicians were hastily summoned, all efforts were of no avail. She did not rally but peacefully and without pain breathed her last at a few minutes after 4 o'clock Mrs. Bennett was in her 56th year having been born Sept. 3rd, 1857. She was married to A. J. Bennett, Sept. 3rd, 1901, on her 44th birthday at Edgewood, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburg at the home of her brother. Before her marriage she was Miss Almira Holly Scully, of Ingram, Pa., and her remains were taken there on the 8 o'clock train Wednesday for interment in the family burying ground. She is survived by her husband, one sister, Mrs. Chrs Chipman, of Chicago; three brothers, Henry, Currey and John Scully, all of Pittsburg, Pa.

Mr. Bennett has the sympathy of all his friends and neighbors in his bereavement. The deceased was a woman of generous nature and warm heart. Her home was one of plenty and hospitality. Only last week, although in poor health, she expressed the desire to do her part in entertaining the visiting Presbyterian ministers and delegates to the Presbytery which was in session. Those who know her best speak on the kindest words of her. The husband and his son, Trice, accompanied the remains to their last resting place.

Mrs. Fannie Walker

Winning Her Way.

The following is clipped from a recent Oklahoma paper:

"Six-year-olds were bending over their books in Lincoln school. Outside, the bees were droning over spring's first flower. The leaves were shooting out on trees. A frog, awakened from its long sleep, was blinking in a shady spot. White clouds were hanging. The air was hot. It was the first real warm day of spring. Mrs. Fannie Walker, awake to the whisperings that were disturbing the boy hearts in her room, looked up from her book and smiled. Then she said a most wonderful thing. It was this: 'Why don't you boys go bare-footed?'"

And right then and there, those boys shed. Yes, siree! Off came shoes and stockings and on came smiles that were limited only to the distance between ear and ear.

Talk about a teacher being popular!"

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Celebrated Its One Hundred And Tenth Anniversary Last Week.

The services in connection with the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the First Presbyterian church in this city came to a close Sunday night and were from the beginning pleasant, profitable and instructive. On Wednesday evening the historical sketch of First Presbyterian church by Rev. Henry V. Escott, of this city, was exceedingly interesting and was heard by a good audience who came especially to hear it. The pastor delved into the archives of many Presbyteries for his history and found much to interest and entertain his hearers. After he had read his article short talks were made by Judge J. G. Rochester, Revs. M. E. Miller and J. F. Price.

On Thursday evening, "The Fruits of Presbyterianism as shown in history," by Rev. Thomas Cummins, D. D., of Henderson, Ky., was a revelation to many who were not informed of the important part played by the Calvinists in the early days.

On Friday evening "the Creed of Presbyterians" by Rev. H. W. Burrell, of Paducah, was well handled and explained by that divine, who refuted many slanderers against the creed of his church. The subject for Saturday evening "The distinctive Doctrines of the Presbyterian church," by Rev. J. S. Lyons, D. D., of Louisville, was postponed till Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Lyons delivering an excellent sermon on "Lazarus and the rich man," instead, and delivering his originally intended sermon on the "distinctive doctrines" Sunday afternoon to a large and appreciative audience at the Methodist church which had been offered for the day on account of its large auditorium and great seating capacity.

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the "Presbyterian church and Foreign Missions, by Rev. L. O. Spencer of Elizabethtown, Ky., who is affectionately remembered here, was listened to by a large audience and his masterly handling of the subject was surprising to those advocates of great liberality in pushing work in the foreign fields.

On Sunday evening, the Presbyterian Church and Home Mission, was handled in an entertaining way by Rev. Dr. J. E. Lyons of Louisville, Ky., who again pleased his congregation with his information and liberal treatment of the subject at hand, and he was congratulated warmly at the close of the discourse.

Stories of The Town.

Things Serious and Frivolous Talked About on the Streets of the County Hub.

(Reported by R. C. HAYNES.)

It will be remembered by those of our readers who have kept up with Zebulum's story, as told by himself, that we left the story-teller and his companion, Nibs, on Crooked creek, whither they had gone fishing; that the two fishermen had seated themselves as securely and comfortably as possible on the end of a log—said log projecting from the bank of the creek half-way across the stream, with the deep, uninviting waters beneath. It will be recalled, too, that Nibs had, in a hoggish way, appropriated to his own use the entire supply of snake medicine, leaving his fellow fisherman exposed to all the dangers that might be experienced from the bites of the poisonous reptiles that infested the creek. But we will now give way to Zebulum and let him continue his story in his own way.

"It was, as Nibs had remarked, a 'snakey'-looking place. The creek, in its rugged and sometimes turbulent course toward the Ohio river, is, as its name indicates, very crooked, winding its way around and between and among the hills that abound in that locality, and at the point we had chosen—and which had been highly recommended by our old friend, Doctor Dan'el, the champion fisherman, hunter and trapper—the undergrowth stood dense on the banks and fallen logs and heaps of brush lay thick around. The big drift before mentioned, which almost spanned the stream, made an inviting harbor for the moccasins and caused the water above it to be covered with a dirty-looking foam. Yet it had been recommended as a good fishing hole.

"Now, Nibs," I said, "cast out your line, sit still, don't talk and we'll soon have a nice lot of fish to take home to both Nell and Nobs. It all depends on your keeping quiet."

"True's gospel, Zeb," replied Nibs. "We must keep quiet and look well to our corks. I promised Nobs I'd bring the sweet thing a string of fish a couple of yards long for her supper. I'm going to do it, too, b'gosh. Speaking of Nobs, Zeb, did you ever read the poem I wrote? It—"

"Never mind the poem, Nibs," I interrupted. "Don't talk—I'm about to get a bite."

"All right, Zeb, I'm not much on talking, anyway, but great on fighting, b'gosh. You're the scoundrel who is given to much talking. Your mouth, Nibs, is always open and spinning out words and weaving them into sentences of more or less intelligence. Yet you're all right, Zeb, only, for your own sake, I wish you'd brought two bottles along. I—"

"Hush, confound you, Nibs, don't you see my cork, by grab—how it has begun to bob up and down?"

"Yes, I see 'em—you've got two corks, Zeb, and both of 'em are bobbing. Why don't you jerk, b'gosh—don't you know how to fish?"

"I have only one cork, Nibs," I explained. "It is a delusion of the eyesight, caused by the overdose of snake medicine. Keep quiet."

"All right, Zeb—wait'll I get my pipe."

"Nibs took the pipe from his pocket, filled it with tobacco, lit it and began to smoke. I followed his example.

"Zebulum," began Nibs, "we've had a fine time so far, but I can't help but feel uneasy on your account. I'm sorry the supply of restorative is e-tinct, and you so helplessly exposed to the perils that surround you. You're all right, Zeb, and if you ever get out of here alive—which is doubtful, b'gosh—I want you to run for congressman, or jailer, or something. I'd be for you, b'gosh, and so would Capt. Wilborn and all the good people of Ford's Ferry. I'd see that you got there, b'gosh. I'd make a speech on every stump in Crittenden county. If any scoundrel would even look like he wasn't for you, b'gosh, I'd mop up the earth with 'im! That's what kind of a politician I am. Whoopie! I can whip—"

"Nibs," I interrupted, "I'll just be dad-smashed if you don't cut that out, off this log you go, skiwaddling, into the creek. I'm getting another bite."

"So'm I, Zeb—up she comes!"

"As Nibs spoke, he gave his line a powerful jerk, bringing up nothing, however, but the empty hook. In giving the jerk, Nibs' pipe somehow became dislodged from the smoker's mouth and was hurled downward into the water. Nibs made a desperate grab for the pipe, missed it, lost his balance and over and down he went backward from the log, down toward the depths beneath, clutching wildly at me in a vain effort to save himself.

"I knew if he got hold of me we would both go down together, so I evaded his hold and clung to the log. Nibs had been sitting with his feet and legs hanging down the side of the log, and, as he fell over backward, his feet, of course, had to come up over the top of the log before they could take their descent along with the rest of the body. Taking an immediate advantage of the situation, just as the falling man's feet were rising up to take their flop over the log, I grabbed his heels with both my hands, pressed them against the log with all my strength, thus checking the fall of the body. Taking a cord from my pocket, I tied his legs in such a way as to keep them coming up over the log, thus letting the body swing back and forth, head downward, over the deep waters below, like a big pendulum.

"Be of good cheer, Nibs," I called down to him, "and I will do what I can, by grab, to help you."

"It was a rather dangerous place to work in. The log, which was not large, was slick on top, and I might lose my foot-hold at any time. However, I stuck to the log and pondered as to how I could help poor Nibs, who was swinging back and forth at a great rate, dangling between the log on which I stood and the turbid waters of the creek.

"Taking up my fishing-pole, I placed the larger end down the side of the log and when Nibs swung to that side, I told him to grab the pole and hold to it with both hands. He did as I directed, and in this way, I drew him up and into a sitting position on top of the log.

"Every time I go to town Old Grinby Grouch comes med—"

"Cut out that singing, Nibs, confound you, or into the creek you go," I told him, as I cut the cords that bound his legs to the log.

"Ouch! Zeb, dad-smother you, do you know you've peeled all the hide off my legs with that blamed rope?"

"You'd have been in a much worse shape if it hadn't been for that cord, Nibs," I replied. "But let us settle down now and get to fishing. Don't say a word."

"That's right, Zebulum, no talk and all fish. Business before pleasure, b'gosh. You're all right, Zeb, and I'm just aching to wipe up the earth with the scoundrel who says you're not. And just to think, Zeb, of the good time you'd have had and the sense of security you'd have experienced if you'd brought two bottles along. I—"

"I've thought of a scheme, Nibs," I interrupted, "which, I think, will work admirably. I know this is a snakey locality and that I am liable at any time to be chased by a warlike moccasin. Therefore, Nibs, the scheme I have in mind is this: If I should suddenly behold an angry moccasin headed my way, by grab, I'll give you a distress signal, then you come running up between the reptile and me and quickly puff a few breaths in the snake's face. The result would be—cramp colic for the snake, safety for me, a sense of accommodation for you and victory for the deposed snake medicine! (Haw-haw-haw!)"

"Zebulum, dad-gum you, do you expect us to catch any fish while you carry on like that?" said Nibs, much provoked. "Keep quiet and let's fish, b'gosh. There's no occasion for talking and nothing to talk about. It's a serious time, b'gosh, and should be treated seriously. I wrote a poem once—one I got up about myself, b'gosh. In writing, whether in poetry or prose, there's nothing like being well acquainted with your characters, Zeb. I also deal with other interesting characters. The poem—"

"Never mind about the poem, Nibs," I interposed. "Keep quiet, by grab—I'm getting a bite."

"That's so, Zebulum, my boy—why don't you jerk, b'gosh? As I was about to say, the poem is pronounced by many who have been so fortunate as to read it to rank favorably with the productions of Byron, Longfellow and Rudyard Kip—"

"Cut it out, Nibs," I said. "Confound the poem and you, too. I'm fishing, by grab, not discussing literature."

"Say, Zebulum, is that a snake down there by the drift? I thought I saw one. You'd better keep your snake eye skinned, b'gosh. Look out for 'em. Remember you are in constant danger, Zeb, poor boy. You can't swim, and you haven't a drop of snake remedy, and if you should fall off this log, b'gosh, you'd be at the mercy of both the waves and the reptiles—if not the Old Boy himself. I'll do all I can to save you, though, and I'm a wheelhorse, a Jonah and an Ajax—the whole thing, b'gosh, at anything you might mention—especially fighting. I believe in war. I'm just waiting for an opportunity, b'gosh, to wipe up this creek bottom with the scoundrel who says you are not all right!! I'd—"

"Nibs," I said, "why in the Dickens and Tom Walker don't you cut out that blamed talking and attend to your cork? Don't you want some nice fish to take home?"

"Yes, I will, Zebby—I'll keep my cork eye coked and say nothing. I promised Nobs I'd bring her a string of the finny tribe a couple of yards long and I'll do it, b'gosh. The sweet thing deserves all the fish in this creek and its tributaries. I had a desperate time getting her and she had a tough time getting me. The poem—"

"The poem be dad-smashed! Be quiet, Nibs, confound you."

"I must keep an eye on my cork, Zeb. I believe I'm getting a bite, too—only it looks like I've got two corks, b'gosh, both bobbing up and down. If I can catch a string even a yard long, it will satisfy Nobs, bless her heart. Did I ever tell you the name of my poem, Zebulum? It is entitled, 'The Bumfuzzling of Rob and Bub.' The first time I meet up with Billy Yates I'll get him to set it to music, b'gosh, and have it before the public in sheet-music form. It will, no doubt, become as popular as 'The Old Turkey Buzzard,' for other productions. The poem begins—"

"Hold up, Nibs," I said, interrupting him. "You must cut out that talking. The sun is getting low, by grab, and the afternoon will soon be gone. Keep quiet now and let's fish to make up for lost time. I'm getting a bite now."

"Yes, we must make up for lost time, Zeb, keep our mouths closed and our eyes on our corks; though you, Zeb, should keep at least one eye on the lookout for the moccasins. I, of course, might watch both corks, while you devote your whole time in keeping out of the way of the moccasins. If you had brought two bottles—"

"Hush, Nibs, I am on the eve of getting a bite. Why don't you act sensibly, quit talking and give the fishes a chance to bite?"

"You're a sensible man Zeb, and are right in your religious and political views. If you ever need any help in upholding them, just call on me, b'gosh. The poem, as I was about to say, begins like this:

"Down near the town of Fords Ferree There lived a maid, Miss Nobs McGee; And likewise on a near-by path, There lived and moved young Nibs McGath."

"Now, Nibs McGath and Nobs McGee Both fell in love most desperatelee—"

"And I am getting 'most desperatelee' mad, confound you," I interrupted. "I dislike to do it, but, by grab, I can't stand that poem! So off the log you go!"

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This interesting story, as told by Zebulum himself, will be concluded in this department of the Record-Press next week.

Health a Factor in Success.

The largest factor contributing to a man's success is undoubtedly health. It has been observed that a man is seldom sick when his bowels are regular—he is never well when they are constipated. For constipation you will find nothing quite so good as Chamberlain's Tablets. They not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. They are sold by all dealers.

Miss Carrie New—"Isn't it too bad about Mrs. Blank's little boy? He fell in a steaming washbowl and was scalded."

Anty Drudge—"Yes, it is a pity. Why women will boil clothes, when it is not only dangerous, but a useless nuisance, I can't see. I must tell Mrs. Blank how much easier and better she can wash her clothes with Fels-Naptha in cool or lukewarm water without boiling."

Have you the once-a-week backache?

Do you know what causes it?

Long, continued bending over a washboard rubbing the clothes up and down.

What are you going to do?

Do your washing the Fels-Naptha way and Fels-Naptha Soap will loosen the dirt so that a few light rubs will take it out easily.

No boiling needed—only cool or lukewarm water.

LAST PILGRIMAGE OF CONFEDERATES

Reunion Next Month at Chattanooga Will Have a Sentimental Interest All Its Own.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 1.—Perhaps the last pilgrimage they will make as a body to the famous battle grounds of Lookout Mts., Chickamauga and Mission Ridge, will be the 1913 Reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, May 27-29. The railroads of the Southeastern Passenger Association have made a thirty day rate of a cent a mile. The War Dept., has loaned the requisite number of tents and cots in order that Chattanooga may suitably care for the 15,000 Veterans who are expected to attend, and who will be lodged and fed free of all cost.

The United Sons of Veterans will hold their reunion at the same place, May 27-29. They will bring with them the usual bevy of beautiful Southern women, as sponsors, maids of honor and chaperones, all of whom will be lavishly entertained by the citizens of Chattanooga.

Enthusiasm and interest never ran so high in the South over the annual reunion of the battle scarred veterans whose spectacular parade at Chattanooga is expected to be viewed by over one hundred thousand visitors in that city of like population.

Only One Way To END CATARRH.

Reach the raw, tender, inflamed membrane infested with Catarrh germs, and destroy them.

You can't reach the nooks and crevices with liquid preparations—there is only one way—breathe the germ destroying air of Booth's HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me) directly over the inflamed and germ infested membrane. HYOMEI contains no opium, cocaine or other harmful drugs, it is a balsamic air made of Australian eucalyptus, thymol, and some Listerian antiseptics. It is guaranteed to end the misery of Catarrh and Croup or money back. It's fine for Colds and Coughs.

Ask Haynes & Taylor about Booth's HYOMEI outfit today—it is only $1.00 and they guarantee it. Extra bottles if later needed, 50 cents. Just breathe it—no stomach dosing. a27ml

Owner Of Gasoline Boat Reaps Golden Harvest.

Princeton, Ind., April 22.—With a small gasoline launch and a barge E. G. Shute has in the last ten days made $1,000 carrying passengers and baggage and mail between Hazeltown and Decker, across White River.

He charged $1 for trunks, but made no charges for cripples, old soldiers or those who needed to cross and had no money. He averaged $100 a day, and from one load made $258. Other boat-owners with launches have been doing almost as well there during the time the Chicago & Eastern Illinois tracks have been washed out but the resumption of train service has put an end to the golden harvest.

HURRAH FOR TENNESSEE.

Plan To Spend $10,000,000 To Better Tennessee Roads.

Nashville, Tenn., April 28.—How to spend $10,000,000 on roads to the best interest of the State and still cater to the public favor is the stupendous question now confronting the Tennessee Highway Commission of the State. At the session of the Legislature that it making itself memorable by holding on indefinitely, the State and numerous counties have agreed to spend $10,000,000 to improve the road system of Tennessee. The great bulk of this amount goes toward building the Memphis-to-Bristol highway across the State, and the balance will be spent in tributaries. Summer county issued bonds to construct a link in the old Louisville and Nashville pike.

Man Who Formed Way to Build Panama Canal.

Washington, April 29.—Professor John Bassett Moore of Columbia university, whose nomination as counsellor of the state department was sent to the senate last week by President Wilson, and confirmed, is to be the big man in the department. It is on his knowledge of international law, perhaps more than on that of Secretary William J. Bryan, that the president will rely in case of trouble. He will at least be as important as Huntington Wilson was during the last administration. Wilson made himself the right hand of the secretary, but Professor Moore is expected to make the position of counsellor most important.

Professor Moore has written many volumes on international law. His knowledge is encyclopaedia. He is the chief authority in the United States on the subject. When President Roosevelt made up his mind that the United States needed Panama for the canal zone he called in the professor to formulate a plan. The professor provided him with one. But, as the story goes, the president did not stick closely to the professor's recommendations. Since then Columbia has cried out that she was robbed of the territory in the new republic.

NOTICE

Order of Court That County Roads Must be Worked or Pay According to Law

On motion at a special term of Fiscal court of Jan. 7, 1913, it was ordered that the roads of Crittenden county be worked by hands to be warned in by the County Road Engineer, or his assistants, and all able bodied male citizens of the county over the age of 18 years and under the age of 50 years, except licensed ministers of the gospel and citizens of incorporated towns and cities, are required to provide themselves with necessary tools and implements, and to work on public roads of the county, not exceeding two days in a week and six days in each year, provided, however that any road hand may pay to the county engineer, the sum of three dollars. ($3.00) on or before the 1st day of June, of any year, and upon payment of said sum, he will thereby be released from work upon the road during the said year. The County Road Engineer shall immediately pay over said sum so paid to him, to the county treasurer, who shall place same to the credit of road fund, and same shall be applied and used in the employment of graders, plows, and teams and hands to work upon the roads of the county when needed. And said treasurer shall keep a separate account of such funds from that paid to him by the sheriff.

In employing hands to work upon said roads the County Engineer shall pay the prevailing wages in the neighborhood where said work is done, not however, to exceed $1.50 nor less than $1.00 per day, for each day of eight hours. In view of this fact I am now prepared to give receipts to all who want to pay,
M. A. WILSON,
County Road Engineer

A Letter From One of Gideon's Band.

Gideon, Mo., April 21, 1913.
Crittenden Record-Press,
Marion, Ky.

Gentlemen:—By gum, I am behind with my subscription, so my paper stopped coming two weeks ago. Now say, I will send you some more money so that you can send the paper a while longer. I don't want to miss it this week for it gives me the news from around my old home every week. The little town of Lola, Livingston Co., is my old home and I am proud of the old Kentucky state, although I like this place very well. I came to this country six years and remained here three years and then went to Cairo, Ill., and remained there two years, then came back to Gideon. I now hold a position in the store with the Gideon, Anderson Lumber & Mercantile Co. They carry a $30,000 stock of goods. It takes ten of us to handle the business in the store.

We have had awful high water here in the swamps, it run all of the wild hogs, deers and turkeys out on the high mounds. A man killed a wild hog this week that weighed 371 pounds, net, and it was just as fat as any you ever saw fed on corn. It got fat on the mass.

Now boys, if your paper stops coming to you, you had better send in your subscription. If you are like myself you are proud to get the paper to see the news. Please find enclosed $1.00 for the paper a few months longer.

Yours Truly,
T. N. Johnson.

Smiling Marshall.

"Envy the vice president! The 'Marshall smile' has already become famous. Who in Washington at this junction but a vice president has the leisure, the unstrained nerves, the freedom from a sense of responsibility to smile? Mr. Marshall smiles with no thought of the morrow. He beams upon whom he will and no rumor spreads that the irradiated person is chosen for a fat collectorship or to represent this country in distant parts. He may light up his countenance with benevolence for no man expects office of him.

"He may utter words like these in joyous abandon: 'You know I believe with Andrew Jackson that if there's any job a Democrat can't fill it should be abolished.' and be the idol of the job hunters who gaze disconsolate at the 'No admission' sign on the white house. An easy popularity is his. He presents a contrast. How many men have derived their greatest happiness from presenting a contrast, since the time when the man thanked God that he was not as other men were? Though no such prayer in Marshalls.

"This country has never fully appreciated the advantages in the office of vice president. --New York Tribune.

Mother.

"Mother", in the good old day, it is true, used to make the family clothes, work the family loom, raise the family chickens, plant the family garden, cook the family food, churn the family butter, embroider the family frocks and bear the family grief; but "mother" of those days used to die at an early enough age to make it possible for "the man of the family" to take unto himself another wife and sometimes a third and a fourth. If there is anything that the old graveyards show it is that the "mothers" lived hard while they did live, but seldom lived long. That "mother" today only does about twice as much work as her husband -- we are speaking of the average "mother" -- is the reason, an investigator avers, why the race is degenerate. We do not think that the race is degenerate, but it were better that it were degenerate than mother should be a packhorse. -- Charleston News and Courier.

A New Back for an Old One--How a Resident Made a Bad Back Strong.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Follow the example of this Marion citizen.

J. O. Tabor, Mexico, Ky., says: "I was afflicted with kidney trouble for about six years. The pains in my back were severe and when I was stooping or lifting, sharp twinges passed through my loins. My back always ached more intensely at night and in the morning I felt lame. I tired easily, was languid and nervous and had headaches. The kidney secretions also passed too frequently and caused me annoyance. I took one and a half boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they rid me of every symptom of my trouble. I am now in good health."

BELETED FLOOD NOTES

Starving Rats Kill and Devour Each Other.

Hickman, Ky., April 28.—Lon Parma, night watchman in the saw mill of the Mengel Box Company's plant here, says that the rats in the building are so starved now that he has to kick them out of his way as he walks about. This plant has been flooded to a depth of several feet, and the water is still several feet deep in the engine-room and around the mill. When the levee broke, hundreds of rats were seen to climb on top of the levee and into the mills as the water rose. Mr. Parma stated as the rats' hunger grew, they would have attacked him had he not carried a stick to beat them off. Finally, the rats fought and killed and ate each other. They are nearly all starved out now and the straggle few that are left are hardly able to walk.

"Patent" Medicines Fill an Economic Need.

The idea that people should be practically deprived of the right to buy the medicines they need without first hunting up a doctor, and paying him for permission to do so, could only prevail among those ignorant of existing conditions or whose judgment is warped by interest or prejudice. Civilization will as soon go back to grinding corn in a mortar as it will to the days of the old apothecary shop. Improved methods, the great growth of population with a correspondingly increased demand, have resulted in improved in methods of manufacture and distribution, and "Patent" medicines represent the most improved method of manufacturing and distributing medical necessities. To try to block progress in this line is on a par with attempts to block any others development which follows out economic laws.—National Labor Bulletin.

ABDUCTED CHILD CRIES 'MOTHER' AS SHE APPEARS

Little Robert Dunbar, Missing Eight Months, Identified at Columbia, Miss.

Columbia, Miss., April 28.—The boy taken from an itinerant peddler here several days ago suspected of being four-year-old Robert Dunbar, missing from his home in Opelousas, La., since last August, was identified by Mrs. C. P. Dunbar, the child's mother today.

Fearing that announcement of the identification of the child by its mother might lead to an attempt to lynch W. C. Walters, the itinerant umbrella mender in whose hands the child was found, a strong guard was placed around the jail where Walters is being held.

Mrs. Dunbar, on arriving here from New Orleans last night, was taken to the home of a deputy sheriff where the child has been kept and remained there until the child awoke this morning. A pathetic scene was enacted when the little, long-missing child opened its eyes and recognized its mother.

"Mother," he cried as he reached up and stretched out his arms to her. The mother convulsively embraced the boy and then fainted. She was soon revived, however.

The father of the stolen boy yesterday had partly identified him as his son by the marks on the body. Owing to his unkept condition and changes caused by exposure, the father awaited the arrival of Mrs. Dunbar before making a complete identification.

The parents, accompanied by their long-hunted son, will probably leave here today for Opelousas, La. A ceaseless search has been kept up for the missing boy and thousands of dollars have been expended running down clues on the widely separated parts of the country.

BARKLEY PRESIDES OVER HOUSE OF CONGRESS

Unusual Honor Accorded Gibraltar's Representative in Washington.

Washington, April 24.—Representative A. W. Barkley presided over the House for an hour today during the opening debate on the Underwood tariff bill. He was the first new member to be accorded that honor. Talking about his experience later, Judge Barkley laughingly said: "At first I felt very much like a young fellow who calls on his girl for the first time, after stumbling over the bear-skin rug and a few chairs. But after a few moments I was so impressed with the power lodged in the chair that I could have declared the whole Republican party out of order."

"The house looks better from the Speaker's chair, because you are farther from it. Most of the members being baldheaded, they look better from the front than from behind. But on the whole I would say that presiding over the House of Representatives is an easier job than presiding over a fiscal court. The reason for this is because in the House of Representatives there are rules to go by, whereas a fiscal court is a rule unto itself."

"So if you want to know how I enjoyed my brief authority I will state that I liked it well enough to try it again if the House will let me. I am impressed with the fact that the House is a great deliberative body of patriotic men, and to be a member of it is a great honor."

A Beautiful Mother Gives Own Flesh for Son.

Macon, Ga., April 28.—To prevent her four-year-old son from being disfigured for life, Mrs. G. L. Sealey, a beautiful young society woman, today permitted physicians to take skin from 25 different places on her body and transfer it to her son's neck and face. Surgeons say the mother will not be injured, and that the operation on the child will be successful.

The boy is suffering from burns. He was in the yard waving a stick with paper festoons when a lineman on a telephone pole dropped a lighted cigarette. The cigarette fell on the paper festoons, ignited them and the boy was fearfully burned.

When surgeons said skin grafting was necessary, many offered to furnish it, but Mrs. Sealey refused. She said she wanted her own skin on her own boy.

Why Grass Grows Better After a Bonfire.

The following is taken from the current issue of Farm and Fireside. Everybody has noticed that the year after you burn a brush-heap at that place the grass will be the brightest green, rank and luxuriant; but not everybody takes the hint and supplies his land around that little green spot with potash and lime in some form. That's what the fire in the brush-heap has done, though. Nature us a suggestion of what good farming is in that way. We will be wise to act upon it.

The Stemming District Books Open.

Reports have gotten out that the Stemming District Tobacco Association would not pool tobacco this year, or it would consolidate with another organization, and that no matter where you pooled would be in the Association.
Such reports are false and misleading. The S. D. T. A., is still doing business at the old stand and men will soon call on all the growers to solicit signers to the Association pooling papers.
R. F. Wheeler.

Notice to Farmers.

The Stemming District Tobacco Association is now ready to receive the balance of the tobacco, pooled with it. Bring in your tobacco as soon as you can.

PRICELESS JEWEL HAS BEEN CLAIMED

'Tis painfully grievous to have our home rent and torn by the unwelcome visitor, death, and while we sadly mourn over our greatest loss, Heaven rejoices in its richest gain.

Our dearest little girl, Charline Elizabeth Weldon, was born August 31st, 1903, and died April 9th, 1913, aged nine years, seven months, and nine days. She was the only child of Mattie O. (Weldon) Harpending.

It is a common practice for us to think and say our own loved ones are the brightest and dearest but it seems that all who know Charline were drawn to her by the strongest chords of love. She was only a child, yet, she was rapidly developing and giving every evidence of being possessed with remarkable talent. She loved and lived in her studies, her school books, her music and her talent for needle and fancy work was very much out of the common; industrious, and perhaps with an unexcelled ambition. She was attractive, sympathetic, loving and kind, carrying with her a welcome for all, and a sweet cheerful atmosphere followed her presence. When we remember her in her unselfish mood in the home, around the fireside, and in all her loveliness, our eyes are filled with tears, and our hearts are pierced with the keenest dangers. Such experiences can only be felt and not uttered in spoken language, though we must be resigned to the sovereign will of Almighty God, for tis He that "doeth all things well and bringeth blessings in disguise," we are comforted and rejoiced to know that God is a God of the living and not of the dead, and that our precious darling is not dead but is living with the angels. Ours is the greatest possible loss, hers is the greatest possible gain. Heaven has claimed another one of its jewels, and is nearer, and dearer and richer for us.

'Tis a sad, solemn, and almost unbearable thought to know that the family ties have been broken and eternally separated, yet, to know that we shall be united in spirit, we submissively bow to His "Divine Will," and realize that time and the grace of God alone can heal the wound.

We express with deep sincerity our thanks to the good people of Marion for their kindness during the illness and death of our sweetest girl. They gave all the care and consolation possible.

Her Uncle,
ROBT. LEAR.
